The Harper's Ferry Rebellion.

QUESTION OF JURISDICTION.

NAMES OF THE INSURGENTS.

BROWN'S STATEMENT.

HARPER'S FERRY, Oct. 19.—The killed and wounded in yesterday's conflict is as follows: Killed, six citizens and 15 insurgents; wounded, three insurgents; prisoners five.

The prisoners have been committed to the Charlestown jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. There was an immense crowd about the gates and cars, with all sorts of arms; but a guard of twenty-five or thirty marines surrounded the prisoners. There was no attempt at violence. Governor Wise, Senator Mason and others, accompanied the train. The Circuit commences to-morrow, when, probably, the prisoners will be tried on Friday. There is no foundation for the rumor of filibusters in the Maryland mountains.

The question of jurisdiction has been settled in this way. The local authorities are to try the prisoners for murder, and meanwhile the United States authorities are to proceed on charge of treason. Governor Wise said to U. S. District Attorney Ould that he had no objection to the General Government proceeding against the prisoners; that is what will be left of them by the time the Virginia authorities have done with them.

Brown is better, and has made a fuller statement, in which he says he rented the farm from Dr. Kennedy six months since, and the rent is paid till next March; he never had over twenty-two men at the farm at one time, that belonged to the organization, but he had good reason to expect reinforcements from Maryland, Kentucky, North and South Carolina and Canada; he had arms sufficient for fifteen hundred men; he had two hundred revolvers, two hundred Sharp's rifles, and a thousand spears; he left them at the farm; he had abundance of powder and other ammunition; he brought all the arms from time to time from Connecticut and other eastern points to Chambersburg, Pennsylvania; they were directed to J. Smith & Sons, Kennedy farm, his assumed name. They were packed in double boxes, so as to deceive the parties who handled them on their way to the farm. He says he made one mistake in either not detaining the train on Sunday night, or permitting it to go unobserved. This mistake, he seemed to inter, exposed his doings too soon and prevented his reinforcements from coming.

The names of all the parties on Sunday night, except three white men, whom he admits he sent away on an errand, are as follows, with their proper titles under the Provisional Government.

Officers—Gen John Brown, Commander in-Chief, wounded, but will recover, Capt. Oliver Brown, dead, Capt. Watson Brown, dead, Capt. Aaron C. Stephens, of Connecticut, wounded badly, he has three balls, and cannot possibly recover, Lieut. Edwin Coppie, of Iowa, unhurt; Lieut. Albert Hazlet, of Pennsylvania, dead, Lieut. Wm. Leman, of Maine, dead, Capt. John E. Cook, of Connecticut, escaped.

Privates—Steward Taylor, of Canada, Charles P. Tinn, of Maine, Wm. Thompson, of New York, Capt. John King, of Ohio, raised in Virginia, Lieut. Jeremiah Anderson, of Indiana, all dead.

With the three whites previously sent off, these make a total of seventeen whites.

Negroes—Dunghfield, newly of Ohio, raised in Virginia, dead, Emperor, of New York, raised in South Carolina, not wounded but a prisoner. The latter was elected a member of the Provisional Government some time since. Lewis Leary of Ohio, raised in Virginia, dead, Copeland, of Ohio, raised in Virginia, not wounded, prisoner at Charlestown.

Major Russell kindly admitted me to the room where Brown was lying, and I held the following conversation with him.

"What is your name—where were you born, and how old are you?"

"My name is John Brown, I am well known. I have been known as Old Brown of Kansas. I'm from Litchfield county, Conn., and have lived in divers places. Two of my sons were killed here to-day and I'm dying too. I came here to liberate slaves, and was to receive no reward. I have acted from a sense of duty, and am content to await my fate but I think the crowd have treated me badly. I'm an old man, and yesterday I could have killed whom I chose, but I had no desire to kill any person, and would not have killed a man had they not tried to kill me and my men. I could have sacked and burned the town, but did not; I have treated the persons whom I took as hostages kindly, and appeal to them for the truth of what I say. I am 63 years old."

Reporter—"When did you first conceive this move?"

Brown—"While in Kansas. After my property was destroyed, one of my sons killed, and my happiness destroyed by the slave party of Kansas, I determined to be revenged. I also was moved in this matter by a hope to benefit the negroes."

Reporter—"Where did you get all your rifles and the pikes which are here?"

Brown—"My own money. I did not receive aid from any man. Cook is not a son of mine. It had succeeded in running off slaves this time, I could have paid twenty times as many men as I have now, for a similar expedition. But I have heard, I did not intend to stay here so long, but they (the citizens) deceived me by proposing compromises which I had no intention of carrying out. I am not in any man's employ." The sum of $450 was found on his person, which was placed with the Paymaster for safe keeping.

He made the acquaintance of a man named Water in Iowa, where Brown told him of this scheme, and asked him to join the expedition. Copie states as follows:

"We were to be well paid for our time and trouble. We never made a direct bargain as to how much we were to receive. Old man Brown was not to pay us, but I don't know who was. The rifles were furnished by the Massachusetts Aid Society. They were first sent to Kansas, but the excitement having died away, they were of no use, and Brown got the rifles for this expedition. They were sent from Kansas to Chambersburg, Franklin county; they were then hauled from there to Brown's house by a man who lives in Greenfield. I don't know who made the pikes or pikes. I have said all the prayers I have to say, and am ready to die."

This man was in excellent spirits, perfectly unexcited in regard to his fate, and said that he was ready to die, if the laws of the country ordered it. The negro's name is Gains. He says he lives in Harrisburg, Pa., and that Brown had induced him to come over to Maryland and fight for him; that he did so, and was induced to go into the insurrection.

"The Minister's Warning."—A Letter to the Editor of the News.

RESPECTED SIR:—Although since departing the flesh I have intermitted my former habit of committing occasional thoughts to the periodical press, yet remembering that a good name is better than precious ointment, (Eccles. vii. 1.) I desire to correct certain errors of a work, written as I understand by a daughter of the worthy Dr. Beecher, formerly pastor of the church in Litchfield.

If any profit may be derived indeed from the use of my humble name by the pen of a ready writer (Psalms xiv. 1.) in like manner with that of the respected Uncle Thomas, it will becometh me to complain. Nor do I hold that on proper occasions the seeking of a pious young woman in the way of marriage is reprehensible.

But truly, it would be a matter of great scandal if the errors before mentioned were left uncontradicted to throw doubt upon my earthly walk and conversation, while ministering to the church in Newport. For it appeareth plainly that the designed marriage with a young person of the name of Scudder, some time during the years of 1785-1787, at which time only the worthy Mr. John Adams was minister at the Court of England, (p. 193). Now it is well known that I was then still rejoicing with the wife of my youth, (Prov. v. 18) Joanna Ingersoll, whom I had married in the seven and twentieth year of my age, and whose life was prolonged until its two and seventieth. She had borne unto me moreover 8 children, namely: 1. Elizabeth; 2. Joanna; 3. Rhoda; 4. David; 5. Moses; 6. Levi; 7. Samuel; 8. Daniel; all of whom were given unto me before my coming to the charge of the church at Newport. Surely it would have been a monstrous scandal had I then looked with eyes of affection upon the damsel Scudder, the more so as "the almond tree had already begun to flourish," (Eccles. xii. 6.) I being then sixty-four years old and upward.

Of other inaccuracies of the work being of less moment, I limit myself to remarking: Firstly, that the learned and courteous Doctor Stiles, of the Second Congregational Society, having left his parochial charge in Newport in the year 1776, it is improbable that he could have made those remarks upon my sermon placed in the mouth of one Deane, (p. 273.) In justice it must be added that my sermon on the Slave Trade was really preached about the year 1770 and while that eminent divine was still at Newport; so that the mistake may have arisen in the writer's mind simply from a confusion of dates, which I have observed to be not uncommon among elderly persons in regard to things which occurred in their early youth. Secondly, in respect of Mr. Burr, I am positive that I never saw him in my life, as I have already stated in an advisory letter addressed to him in the year 1802. (Park's Memoir p. 257.) It may perhaps be one of those licenses in which persons accustomed to fictitious composition indulge themselves to suppose that we did meet, but I feel warranted in observing that he could not at the time of such supposed meeting have been a Senator of the United States, no such body having then existed. Neither have I any recollection at all in my parish of a fashionable French lady who speaks her own language incorrectly, made carriage calls of ceremony in a riding-hat and riding-gloves, and saluted gentlemen whom she found conversing with a lady unknown to her in a remote corner of the garden; thus: "Well, my friend, what are you doing here?"

Thirdly I feel it my duty to testify in behalf of the colored person Candace, that so far as I knew her daily walk it was never her habit to use the terms of religion in the irreverent manner in which they are put into her mouth by the writer whom her great familiarity with the manners and language of the colored race I take to be well-disposed toward them, but not sufficiently able to distinguish between that cheerful and hearty view of their evidences which such persons are constitutionally inclined to enjoy, and a low and vulgar expression touching sacred things.

The writer's recollection of Newport differs very much from my own, the evidence of which is manifest in the following passages:—

"I have at times noticed during ministerial exhortations in the remote country parishes of New England. I make this observation with diffidence, knowing her greatly superior advantages of late in studying the aristocratic life of other countries, in the course of those travels by allusion to which she hath so greatly enriched most pages of her book. I am, however, positive that there was at that time more than one store and one dwelling-house in the place, and that the main did not, at least during my residence there, arise over the harbor, in the West. (p. 70.)

Having now, respected sir, extended these upon the subject of my former thoughts, I shall not trouble you further, but leave the shadows of my pen to my pastoral conductor, I subscribe myself your sincere friend and ready servant (in all lawful desires and commands.)

Late Pastor of the First Church in Newport R. I.

Local Facts and Gossip.

OUR KILLER.—There was great tribulation about town yesterday morning, many running to and fro with consternation depicted in their looks, because they could not read our paper, and all the spectacles, eye-glasses, opera-glasses and telescopes in town were brought into requisition, in many instances to no purpose. It wasn't worth to any of that's a fact, but was the best we could do under the circumstances. The types got "the blues" and would not print, and all we could say and do would not make them. Our readers must bear with us a day or two longer, and then we will show them a paper they can read with their eyes shut.

Three Days Later From Europe.—SACKVILLE, N. B., Wednesday, Oct. 10. The R. M. steamship Europa, Capt. Leitch, from Liverpool at 9 a. m. of the 8th inst., arrived at Halifax at 2 o'clock this morning.

The following disasters to American ships are reported:

American ship Congress ran aground near the Diver's Light in the English Channel on the 6th inst., and remained aground at the latest date. Assistance has been sent from Portsmouth, and it was supposed she would be got off.

Lost.—The ship has been got off, and towed to Spithead. The amount of damage done is not known.

The Calicut from New York for Rotterdam, ran ashore on South Pass, as on the 4th, but no particulars have been received.

The Lancaster from San Francisco for Australia, foundered at Malaki on July 10. The crew were saved.

The New Year Hannania from Southampton for New York, ran ashore off Start Point on the 5th inst. She got off, and proceeded without apparent damage.

Nothing further has been received regarding the proceedings at Zurich, beyond the general assertion that progress continued to be made toward signing the treaty of peace. It is said that the treaty will be complicated, and will leave Austria a door open to quarrel with Piedmont.

The Paris Constitutionnel contains an article by its chief editor, stating that the preliminary arrangements for peace had been made from every foreign intervention, no matter under what name or from what power it might come. France confines herself to giving Italian advice. It followed by them, that advice would have insured the prosperity of Central Italy, but having in vain offered advice, she cannot go so far as to dictate orders to Italy.

The latest reports say that the treaty between France and Austria will probably be signed at Zurich on the 10th or 12th inst. Austria consented to sign on all questions belonging to Lombardy.
